

and home owners are paying that much less. There is no necessity of a general property tax levied by the state.

The point is that where LaFollette has fought Big Business, Big Business was wrong and corrupt and unfair to the people. But where Big Business is right he has no fight on it. Business has nothing to fear from him save evil in its activities. In such matters unrelenting war must always be expected from Bob.

I have ridden frequently from Madison to Chicago, and until recently the Pullman fare was 50 to 65 cents. Protestingly I asked the reason and was told that the Pullman company had gone before the rate commission of Wisconsin—of which more hereafter—and showed that it was not making a fair profit on the business. The rate commission allowed the increase—and the fine thing about it is that so high is the esteem in which the commission is held, that its decision was accepted by travelers as just.

WEATHER FORECAST

Colder Tomorrow — Increasing cloudiness, with rain tonight and probably on Thursday. For Chicago and vicinity: Warmer tonight, with temperature considerably above freezing; colder Thursday; brisk winds, shifting to westerly Thursday morning.

"TAY PAY'S" WIFE VISITS NATIVE LAND AGAIN

Mrs. T. P. O'Connor.

Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, wife of the famous Irish member of the British parliament, has been touring the south, gathering material for new book, to be called "My Beloved South."

Mrs. O'Connor is an American by birth. Before she became the wife of the famous "Tay Pay" and while he was still carving out his political and journalistic career, Mrs. O'Connor was working 14 hours out of the 24 as a reporter on a New York newspaper.

Besides being one of her husband's rivals in the editorial field, Mrs. O'Connor has written a number of books, and has been a tireless worker for the Irish Industrial association.
